Mid Valley Fire District Meeting Report

By Elizabeth Cowley

The Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District (MCVFPD) Board of Directors held its monthly meeting on Wednesday, April 26.

Last month the Board adopted a draft budget for the approximately $8,700 the MCVFPD receives from Measure A funding for fiscal year 1995-96. This budget was submitted and approved by the county but must still be submitted to the Board of Supervisors for final approval. The budget calls for the Measure A funding to be spent on the "sleeper program" to ensure that at least 2 people are at the station at all times, the MCVFPD CPR training program, and infectious disease screening for the volunteers as required by law.

The Board decided that the volunteer firefighter retirement fund should continue to be managed by the Insurance Committee.

Chief Carmichael informed the Board that the Monterey Air Quality Management District gave county fire districts the option of extending the burn season due to the flooding. Chief Carmichael recommended, and the Board agreed, that this extension is not necessary for the Mid Carmel Valley Fire District.

The 10 new volunteer firefighters practiced putting our fires during the controlled burning of a labor camp in Salinas.

Chief Carmichael indicated that the MCVFPD is over budget due to overtime costs incurred during the January and March flooding and due to sending "strike teams" to Orange County. These costs are expected to be recovered from Orange County and FEMA assistance.

Monterey County is accepting bids to create a county wide ambulance enterprise to employ a minimum of 100 people, run 20-22 ambulances which will carry approximately 17,000 patients per year. The MCVFPD, the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District and the Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance Authority intend to bid together for the county wide ambulance enterprise.

The MCVFPD Board decided to solicit bids for a soils study of the upper fire station parking lot as it has developed several holes and needs to be repaired.

The Mid Carmel Valley Fire Protection District Board of Directors holds its regular meeting every 4th Wednesday at 7:30 PM at the Mid Carmel Valley Fire Station; the meeting is open to the public.

$500,000 for flood relief

A tremendous outpouring of support from throughout the region helped the Monterey County Flood Relief 95 Telethon pass the $500,000 mark. The money will go to help the victims of this year's unprecedented floods in Monterey County.

About 800 people purchased tickets at $50 each for the benefit dinner and show at the Conference Center.

Supervisor Sam Karas, county Supervisor Tom Perkins and David Armanasco of Armanasco Public Relations, Inc. were co-chairmen of the telethon.

Contributions to help the flood victims may still be made by sending checks to Community Foundation--Flood Relief 95, PO Box 1384, Monterey, 93942. The Community Foundation for Monterey County is the fiscal agent for the telethon and is not charging an administrative fee.

Todd Lueders, executive director of the Community Foundation, said that the flood relief disbursement committee, whose members include himself, Clay Larson of First National Bank of Monterey and Charles Chrietzberg of Monterey County, will meet shortly.

"I was overwhelmed with the response from the community and everyone's cooperation," said Teresa Burgess, executive producer of the telethon and the program director for KSBW-8, which extended its scheduled three hour broadcast of the event by about 40 minutes.

New fund raiser for Youth Center

If you like both kinds of music, country and western, then your gonna love what the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center has got planned for you on Saturday, May 13th. The biggest change in fund raising for CVCYC in 13 years...The Carmel Valley Round-Up.

Although Monte Carlo has been the mainstay as the single biggest fund-raiser for 12 years, 1995 ushers in the commitment of CVCYC to provide more events, activities and programs for the enjoyment of a larger segment of the community. And who doesn't like a dance party & BBQ?

Two great bands will shake the valley floor for an evening of dancing, BBQ, raffles and a super silent auction.

Early on, enjoy a dinner of tri-tip & chicken, country style beans, french bread, salad and dessert, while the very popular Strictly Country plays your favorite country tunes from 6 until 9 p.m. Continue dancing until midnight with the young country beat of Eight Second Ride. Two silent auctions during the night will have over $12,000 in items donated by area supporters. The auction promises to have something of interest for everyone.

Line dancing, prizes for the best boots, fanciest hat, shirt, and best couples dance will also be held. If you don't enjoy this evening, you belong on boot hill.

Tickets are $30 to dance and enjoy a great BBQ or just come out and dance until you drop for only $15. The bar will remain open until 11 p.m. and a valid ID and hand stamp will be required for the entire evening.

The proceeds from this event will be used to benefit the programs, activities and facilities of your Carmel Valley Community Youth Center. Early purchase for BBQ is suggested. Send your check or Money Order to CVCYC, PO Box 124, Carmel Valley, CA 93924. Call the office at 659-3983 to reserve your tickets or FAX your request to 659-9373.

A PLACE IN THE SUN

Virginia Parke

Will someone please check and see if the Monterey Peninsula has slipped away from sunny California and drifted north on the currents. It feels as though we are closer to Seattle. The name of this column may change soon. I'm counting on Dave Lyon's promise that the sun will return.

Speaking of rain, there is a special thank you penned on a piece of cardboard and placed on a magnificent oak tree on Los Helechos. "Thanks to Dave Collins, Maintenance Manager, Monterey County Public Works Department for saving this beautiful tree." A heart felt tribute to the cooperative effort of those working on flood recovery.

Inspired by your response to local entertainers at the Sun sponsored "Up The Creek" Benefit, Daniel Barduzzi at the Los Laureles Lodge is inviting local musical artists to perform every Saturday evening. Members of the audience will be invited to sing-a-long. Song sheets will be available.

The fun begins May 20. Some of the local talent featured on a rotating basis will be Kathleen Tarp, Thomas Duckett, B.J. Emmons, Heartstrings, Pat McAnney, Stephanie Jones, Elizabeth McNeely, The Pointless Sisters, Stephanie Snuggs and Joseph De Maria. Gennady Loktionov will accompany on the piano. Michelle Noseworthy is the director of entertainment.

The first Friday of every month will be open auditions. You can come and perform. The audience will judge the auditions. That's right, you can bring you own cheering section. A time to celebrate and share our community spirit and talent.

Speaking of talent, Village resident, Cynthia D'Vincent is an internationally know cetalogist. (The study of aquatic marine mammals, whales.) The Discovery Channel has done a piece about her reseach and she has just signed a movie contract. She conducts whale enviornment reseach tours in the Alaskan Alexander Archipelago during the summer months. If you want more information, she can be reached at 659-5807.

A personal thanks from this nature lover to all who struggled out in the rain and mud to participated in trail clean-up at Garland Park this last week-end. It is a dirty job and nobody had to do it, but you did!

Bridge work stays on schedule

As construction of the new Highway 1 Carmel River Bridge and road realignment nears the one-month mark, work remains on schedule for completion of the project by the scheduled date of May 21.

"Things have been going real well," Bruce Pastorius, resident engineer for the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans), said Tuesday.

The first major concrete pour on the bridge and road realignment project--more than 700 cubic yards of concrete for the bottom and the side of the bridge--was completed on Saturday. Workers will be pouring the deck for the bridge on Thursday or Friday and that should take about one day, Pastorius said.

Work on the $4.4 million project began April 1 after heavy March rains and subsequent flooding washed out the old two lane bridge. RGW Construction Inc., a Fremont firm, is the general contractor.

For a tape-recorded Caltrans update, you may call 624-8904.

The battle against unwanted pets

Spring is the time of year when thousands of unwanted kittens and puppies are born. Forty-five kittens and 15 puppies are born for every human born in the United States. Spaying and neutering pets is the most effective way to deal with the pet overpopulation problem. Additionally, spaying/neutering prevents many cancers in dogs and cats.

The SPCA has low-cost spay/neuter clinics--one at the SPCA on Highway 68 across from Laguna Seca Recreation Area.

For more information, call 373-2631 or 422-4721, ext. 218.

TOUCHING BASES

Peter Lyon

And who is Jake Musser?...A stand-out player for the old Brooklyn Trolleys? The relief pitcher for the 1923 Roosterboot, Arkansas, Yellowlegs the year they went to the Trans-Mississippi Invitational and Dirt-clod Throwing Festival? A local name of whom we can be proud? Read on, baseball fans.

And the least shall be first... Recently we profiled the young people who threw the first ball or stood up to the first pitch of the season. Today we'd like to honor the young man who led that magnificent parade of colorful players on Carmel Valley Little League Opening Day, April 8th.

In spite of the announcement in this good paper that Opening Day would be April 15--a taxing day for most of us--and in spite of the lowering weather that greeted early risers, the miracles of Carmel Valley Little League revealed themselves once again. The rains ceased, the floods never came, the lupin and poppies greeted the sun, and a very large percentage of the human and dog population of lovely Upper Carmel Valley gathered noonish at our "where-else-can-you-find-a-setting-like-this" Little League Park. No rainbow could match the chromatic display of the uniforms as the kids gathered by the visitors' dug-out on Benny Field. Somehow, the managers, the coaches, the parents, and the herd dogs kept everyone more or less in line until that Great Moment, the commencement of the Grant March onto the field.

And just who led that Grand March, that colorful parade of hope and pride, butterflies over the flowers and butterflies in the tums? Ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls, let's tip the CVLL baseball cap to Jake Musser of the yellow-clad T-ball Tigers, the Out Front Kid of the Day!

Post-Jacobean... After every one of those magic, hopeful children had paraded onto Benny Field, when the crowd has applauded the Giants, Eagles, Chargers, Sluggers, Tigers, Falcons, Pirates, Sonics, Bears, and Panthers of T-ball; the Broncos, the Cubs, the Hornets, the Pirates, the Toros and the Wolfpack of single-A; the Braves, the Eagles, the Rangers, the Red Sox, and the Sharks of double-A; not to mention the Big Folks on the Falcons, the Indians, the Lions, the Tigers, and the Volunteers--then came the Moments of High Drama and Requisite Ceremony. And wasn't it a lovely day! Some highlights:

•Mike Thatcher, our Maximum President, introduced the CVLL Board and otherwise kept his remarks brief and to the point, or so it sez here.

•Kyle Glanville recited the Little League Oath flawlessly.

•Thomas Duckett gave a soul-stirring rendition of The Star Spangled Banner--what a pro!

•Jim Sommerville threw out the First Ball--and we hope not the first arm--of the season, to Kyle Glanville, who caught gracefully.

•And once the dust had settled and the adults had vacated the field to the real stars of the afternoon, then the Tigers and the Volunteers, their greens and reds mixed like a springtime reminder of Yuletide, went at each other vigorously--and so began another CVLL season. Aren't we fortunate that we can provide our youngsters an opportunity to play ball in this supportive, kind environment, where the light lies across the fields clear, where the good smell of the river fills the nostrils, and the parents cheer the fine efforts on either team.

•

To sing for unsung heroes...A tip of the CVLL cap and a quart of industrial strength detergent to Cindy Thatcher, who is doing such a fine job of holding the snack bar together this year. Though the rest of you are all too numerous to mention, thanks to all the parents who have helped out in that snack bar, a job which teaches elementary math, advanced pickle placement, and a generous dose of humility.

VALLEY VOICE
Fran Farina

April 5th was a very important day. For the first time, the State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) was briefed by its staff on the Carmel River.

The SWRCB is a quasi-judicial body holding statewide jurisdiction over appropriative water rights in California. It has authority to establish the right to use water, sets priority for that right, and sets conditions which may limit the right.

In the very near future, this board is expected to render decisions on two aspects of Carmel River water rights.

The first decision has to do with the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's (MPWMD) application. If granted, this will authorize the District to divert water from the Carmel River for storage in the 24,000 acre foot New Los Padres Dam and Reservoir.

The second decision is associated with five complaints filed against Cal-Am challenging their right to use water from Carmel Valley. The first complaints were filed in 1987 by the Carmel River Steelhead Association alleging that Cal-Am's diversions from the Carmel River were unauthorized and destroy public trust resources (including the Carmel River steelhead fishery). Subsequent complaints were filed by the Residents Water Committee, Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club and the California Dept. of Parks and Recreation.

Public trust water rights can limit water available for use under other water rights doctrines to ensure that adequate supplies exist to meet fish, wildlife, recreation and aesthetic requirements. Cal-Am holds a license from the SWRCB to use 3,030 acre feet "within California-American Water Company service area in Carmel Valley." Cal-Am argues that it holds additional water rights secured prior to 1914, the amount of which will be part of the decision.

Over 80% of the water supplied within the boundaries of the MPWMD comes from the Carmel River system. From July 1, 1993 to June 30, 1994, Cal-Am pumped over 12,000 acre feet from the Carmel Valley aquifer, most of which was shipped out of the valley for use on the peninsula. It is this groundwater extraction which has so adversely impacted the lower nine miles of the Carmel River and threatened the public trust resources which the SWRCB is required to protect.

The decision by the SWRCB could result in required measures to protect the Carmel River environment, including a reduction i the amount of water now available for municipal use. This is why April 5th was such an important day. In order for staff to brief its board, a comprehensive analysis was prepared based on all the evidence submitted in various hearings since 1992. This will provide the basis for a draft decision which is expected to be made public before the end of May.

The MPWMD will prepare a special mailing to explain the state decisions as soon as the information is made public.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

The scientific studies of behavior of rats in crowded cages bear out striking similarities between rats and humans. Put too many in a cage, or on a planet, and they achieve "critical mass", the condition that makes nuclear explosions work so well.

So, now our poor, struggling planet's weirdos have a new toy, bombs made with a common product sold "over the counter", and with the help of easy to follow instructions graciously available, every sick mind, from graffiti artists to low-budget international terrorists, can look forward to greatness and riches.

The outlook is not good, especially here in America, with politeness allowing us to be over-run by high birth-rate immigrants, and several membership-ambitious religions, plus some really odd politicians, standing in the way of intelligent birth control methods.

With these pitiful attention-craving "militias" leading the charge, our various law enforcement agencies are going to have their hands full. I sure hope the gun-loving National Rifle Association decides to side with us law-abiders, if for no other reason than to protect themselves from possible "association stigma."

We must all have noticed, by now, the O.J. Simpson case, for example, that we do not have a workable criminal justice system, and this is not good news, piled on top of a rapidly worsening crime rate.

It's interesting that some of the loudest voices calling for action against criminal acts seem to be out in front trying to save some convicted killer from being executed. After it's too late, even some of the bleeding hearts may be campaigning for adoption of the Singapore criminal justice system.

LETTERS to the Editor

EDITOR, CARMEL VALLEY SUN

I'm not sure who Fran Farina warns us about in her column in the April 20 issue of your paper. I wasn't aware of any threats out of Pacific Grove, etc.

I differ, however, with her argument that residents of the valley who have lived here longer should be listened to above all others when considering valley issues. In evaluating the Carmel Valley Master Plan, Fran has advised against soliciting input from the general public, advising instead that recommendations from "those with expertise" (such as those who serve on the advisory committees) is preferable. I believe that ideas and comments from anyone motivated enough to share them is all the validity you need. This type of idea brainstorming can lead to solutions not yet thought of--something "experts" may have trouble with because they are too close to a subject and too set in their thoughts.

Following Fran's line of reasoning: we should not listen to her ideas about the valley as she is a relative newcomer; we should be listening more to Ed Haber than to Jerry Foote or Robert Greenwood, as he predated both of them; we should just turn the planning for the Carmel Valley over to Skip and Mike Marquard and Nancy Porter, since they predate most everybody else!

Whoever you are, if you have something to contribute to the evaluation of the Carmel Valley Master Plan, I'd like to hear it, and so would the board of supervisors. Please plan on attending the public forums.

DIVORCE YOURSELF AND EMOTIONS FROM SALE

When Tom and Joanie asked me to take a look at their home the other day, I didn't hesitate.

They've owned it for about four years. "We bought it at the top of the market," Joanie told me. "We're a little concerned about values right now," she said. It had been perfect for just the two of them back then. But now that their son Joseph is turning two, it's getting smaller every day.

I could tell that Tom and Joanie had thought long and hard before calling me. It was evident that they had real mixed emotions about moving.

They showed me through their home. The living room and dining room had a lot of original charm. The fireplace, the moldings, the built-in hutch, the lead glass windows. "We loved this part of the house as soon as we walked in," Joanie said. "We were going to replace the light fixtures, but we've gotten used to them now," Tom added.

We entered the kitchen and came through a time zone. "The previous owner did most of the remodeling. But we redid the counters and added the microwave," Joanie said. "Also," she motioned to the rear of the room, "there used to be a sort of wall or partition area right here, and we removed it. You can tell if you look at the floor. See how the two areas don't quite match up? That's one of the things we wanted you to tell us, Rand. Should we redo that before we put it on the market?"

Before I could answer, Tom added: "Also, see how the laundry door opens in the kitchen? We were thinking of making that a slider. But then we'd have to move the water heater. Which actually would give the area more room. Oh, and let me show you something else. We thought of opening this wall into the other room behind it, and it would become more of a family room instead of that one room in the back of the house. Here, look. What do you think, Rand?"

Before I could reply, they marched me down the hall, then out to the backyard, and through the garage. They had questions, ideas, unfinished projects. They pointed out what they loved about their home, what they had done to their home, what they wanted to do to their home, what other possibilities their home had. "If someone wanted, they could easily add on right here," he said. "I've often thought that this area would be ideal for a koi pond," she said. "Before we had Joseph, we used the area as an office. We've toyed with the idea of adding a room in the attic. We could turn this closet into a staircase. One thing we just haven't gotten around to is changing the carpet in this room. It's had to tell now, but the garden is beautiful. I just haven't been able to spend much time in it as I should. Our neighbor, Fred, is wonderful. We haven't told him we're thinking of moving yet."

The tour took forever. Who would have guessed a house this size could take this long to see? Finally, I think they began to hear themselves. They were showing me their home and they were revealing their life to me. Where does one part stop and the other part begin? They both stopped as if on cue. They looked at me as if to say, "How in the world would we possibly stop living long enough to sell our home?" And then, afterward, "How would we resume everything in a place we haven't seen yet?"

At that moment, Tom and Joanie came face to face with the invisible truth about residential sales. It's invisible because it's rarely recognized even when you're staring right at it. And if you do sense its presence, by its very nature, you avoid discussing it.

The truth is that when an agent lists a home for sale, he or she is putting someone's life on the block, packaged in a house. To accomplish the sale successfully, the seller needs to emotionally move out of the home. For most people, this is impossible to do. There is too much going on. Too much left to do. There is no good time to do it. And if you've planned for it carefully, there is too much that affects the process that is out of our control.

Consequently, the truth is that it's not easy to sell a home. It's always emotional. And, everybody involved hopes that this time it'll go smoothly. The truth is, if you explore the infinite things that could go wrong, that might net the seller less money, that may get the seller more money, that could make the process easier, that may get in the way, or that might prevent the sale altogether, it doesn't get much easier.

Ultimately, the truth is that emotions are always mixed, and a good agent helps to calm them down instead of stir them up.

After touring their home, and discussing their most intimate concerns and desires, Tom and Joanie had that look of bewilderment on their faces. I recognized it when they turned expressionless. "We're hoping that, as an agent, you could give us your suggestions. We're not sure exactly where to start," they told me. I smiled, "No problem. I'm here to help. But, let me start by asking you this question: Do you want me to be totally honest with you even if it is not what you want to hear?" I said. "This may seem a ridiculous question. Of course, you may think 'why would you not be honest?' I wouldn't. But at the emotional cross roads it sometimes seems that what's best for your clients is to make them feel good. It's in these moments that telling someone what they want to hear is only a temporary fix."

VALLEY FINANCE
Douglas Pease

I think most of us feel life insurance is for other people. I know that is true about aviators who visit heaven frequently, but refuse to recognize the odds of eventual residency.

Statistically, life insurance experts can forecast the day we will die once they know our birth date. For a price, the insurance company will sign a contract to pay named beneficiaries a specified amount when we die. The price is cheap when we are young, and dear when we are old. We can pay what the insurer requires to meet the statistical risk year by year...the short term plan, or we can take the longer view and overpay the contract at the beginning to offset rising costs later on...the lifetime installment plan.

In recent years, I have come to regard the lifetime installment insurance plan as an opportunity to accumulate all the money Congress will allow us to put into the contract. That part of the premium not needed to meet current risk expenses and administrative fees, earns about 7% interest these days at most prudent companies. Tax deferred. No tax consequences to withdraw principal, or to borrow against the account at a net 1% to 3% interest.

The accumulation account is protected from creditors, its disposition is governed by contract law and it can be used to fund a lifetime annuity instead of the death benefit if needs change.

Well funded universal life insurance contracts offer owners a wide variety of "mix and match" possibilities: buy some of the death benefit on the lifetime installment plan and the rest on the short term plan. Pay a high premium for seven years and never pay again or pay a lower premium for life. Carry a large death benefit until the kids are through college, then reduce the benefit and withdraw excess cash for retirement. Turn the switch that adds the accumulation account to the death benefit if more liquidity is required in the estate plan. Or make a charitable gift of some or all the contract benefits when they no longer serve other necessary purposes.

Aviators receive the full death benefit, in cash, on the policy anniversary following their 95th birthday.

Junior League gives small grant to SPCA

The SPCA of Monterey County recently received a $430 grant form the Junior League of Monterey County. The grant was for the design and production of a harbor seal "dress up" costume that is used by local school children. Using the dress-up, the student volunteer is transformed into a harbor seal. During the transformation, students learn about the behavior and physiology of the harbor seal.

The dress-up is used in conjunction with the Harbor Seal Project, a collaborative program of the SPCA and the Pebble Beach Company. the program is designed to protect harbor seals during the pupping season.

The SPCA of Monterey County is an independent, donor-supported humane society. Services provided to the public are made possible by donations from individuals, organizations and businesses throughout the county.

...and four ...herproof ... CVLL ...orse, who ... for his ... CVLL operation running smoothly. Many thanks, Mike.

Eight gallons more of our ubiquitous green paint go to Joan Vandervort, she of the Local Dynasty, for her fine work on the outfield fence billboards. It's hard to put one over on Joan, but every kid is trying this year to top her signs.

It's a real drag, but Pam Priano keeps trying to smooth out the infield lumps between games. Rumor has it that about fourteen Pony-League-age kids would love to drive the tractor for her. Why not sign 'em up?

Jon Siegel is the only CVLL Board member who regularly wears a flak jacket to the games. Sure, his son Isaac can throw the ball hard, but Jon is the Player Agent, and he lives in dodge city. It's a tough job and he does it well. Keep that vest tight, Jon; we need you.

Scrabble contest... What is a "double 'z' word which gets maximum points for the CVLL? Pizza. And how do you spell "energy", "caring", and "love for kids who play CVLL baseball"? Give me a "G" for Gabriella Buich: Team Mom Coordinator, Irrepressible Sweet-tooth Candy Bar Pusher, Get-the-Menke-off-my-back Neon raffle expert. And hubby is the CVLL VP! Good family.

Standing and Outstanding... General Consensus--an upstanding leader in a democracy--has indicated that here in paradise we won't worry about Whose Team Is Ahead in the Standings. From T-Ball to Majors, the emphasis is on play, skill, and enjoyment, not WINNING. Therefore, please do not look to this column for box scores or win-loss stats. We are winners because we are here, and we are here because of a great graceful accident of fortune, able to sit in the stands of an afternoon with the light pouring down over the hills, the river singing its song, and our youngsters showing us again the promise that we help bring to fruition can we but be quiet and gentle and allow for healthy play.

But as to outstanding:... Herewith the results of an informal poll conducted on a gentle misty comfortable afternoon when the question of the moment was, give us a few names of Major League players who have done well so far in the First Half of the CVLL season.

•Falcons: Ben di Grazia, pitching; Tim Covington, catching--and a home run; Brent Sravers, an all-around ball player.

•Indians: Andreas Baer, catching; Isaac Siegel and Storm Nilson, pitching; Nathan Ricigliano, fielding.

•Lions: Zack Newhouse, pitching; Chris Cope, hitting; Harry Heneks, fielding and hitting; Matt Hale for a home run.

•Volunteers: Rico Ferrante, hitting; Brandon Ocampo, pitching; Roger Balyon and Ral Powers for home runs.

Thanks...It's been a great first half. A tip of the cap to all of you who remember to take ... game and Paso ... Cresta and comi... home); thanks t... smoke anywhere near the kids, six gold stars and a pound of recycled plastic grocery bags to all of you who pick up an extra bit of trash around the stands; a pint of bi-carb and a free blood test at Paul Tocchet's place to all who give up family meals to support the kids at evening games; and most of all, thanks to all of you who teach our kids the best there is by cheering every good move, every hope, every dream of every youngster irrespective of color of face or uniform, irrespective of level of talent or income, focusing only on the magic that is every child, the promise for a tomorrow that continues the tradition of baseball in paradise.
